IBFS AND SPACE STATION LICENSING REFORM

IBFS is central to the implementation of the space station licensing reform

- Effectiveness of new licensing process is IBFS dependent
- Integral part to Earth Station licensing
- New modules such as Schedule S and Form 312EZ to come online

We would like IBFS to be user friendly

- New initiatives such as Schedule S, Form 312EZ etc. Will need your input
- Stakeholder input helps to meet our collective needs
- Users, both inside and outside, need to maintain dialog with IB
- Helps to insure accurate, effective and responsive feedback to our concerns

Not a one time effort but an ongoing process

- Involves continuous feedback until all IBFS initiatives are implemented, tested and placed into use
- Will always need your input as new modules are developed

Participation by everyone is encouraged

- Will make IBFS the most effective tool to serve our needs
- Helps you in the filing of your applications and helps FCC staff manage the licensing process
- Should result in less filing errors
- Allows Satellite Division staff to be more responsive and take quicker action on the applications before us

The International Bureau Application Filing and Reporting System

IBFS is an internet-based system that allows for electronic filing of a variety of international and satellite applications. While we strongly encourage you to use IBFS to file applications, electronic filing of applications is voluntary at this time. Before filing applications through IBFS, users are required to complete an IBFS registration form.

Click here to get started or to learn more about filing applications in IBFS.

The IBFS search tools provide access to up-to-date application information and various reports. No registration is required to use the IBFS search tools. To begin searching for data, click the Search Tools button on the left side of the page.
